Last time we talked about listening to the radio over the internet (streaming) from your PC and from your smart devices using various apps. How did you go? Radio Box, VRadio, Tune in Radio, Community Radio Plus

This time I thought we'd chat about the weather.

2. FROM THE NEWS    Go-Dogo Gaming console for Dogs

Do you sometimes worry that your furry family members don't get the daily mental stimulation they need? Studies show that boredom can have a serious impact on the well-being of our dogs - in particular... Cats not so much :)

Dogs who experience boredom regularly have a higher chance of becoming sick and developing mental health issues, which can result in a decreased life expectancy.

A company in Copenhagen Denmark have developed a dog treat dispensing console game, called Go-Dogo. It consists of a carousel of treats mounted near your television set with a couple of cameras to monitor activity. The TV screen shows an image of a human who can call the dog over and issue various commands (like sit, lie down, stand). This can be pre-programmed or at random times during the day... perhaps as a distraction for your pooch while you're cooking. The cameras check that the dog establishes eye contact with the screen and then verifies the dog is doing what it's told. If it's all good, a treat drops down as a reward.

Go Dogo is an intelligent and interactive game for dogs, which helps you to include mental stimulation in your dog's day. It lets your dog earn treats by solving challenges in the game.

Dogs love to work for their food and they learn best through positive reinforcement - one treat at a time.

3. TIPS AND TRICKS    Tweak your Google Keyboard on Android Phone

Android

The google keyboard which is standard on Android phones has a few customisation which can help speed up your typing and has a few somewhat secret features

All the secret stuff is revealed by selecting the gear icon above the top row of your keyboard. If you don't see the gear cog, look for a little arrow top row pointing to the right. Tap it to scroll the top row which should reveal the gear cog.

1. Preferences -> Long-press for symbols
2. Preferences -> Key long-delay 200ms
3. Preferences -> Number row
4. Long press numbers to see superscript and fractions
5. Preferences -> Keyboard height (fat fingers)
6. Text correction -> Undo auto-correct on backspace (then space to carry on with your word)
7. Text correction -> Double-space full stop
8. ... ellipses from the keyboard (next to gear cog) for other features like one-handed, floating keyboard, theme, translate, etc
9. There's a microphone next to the ... ellipses (guess what that does?)

Apple

For you Apple folk, I have a keyboard tip for you too.

Swipe down (ever so slightly) when you go to tap on a letter on the keyboard and it gives you the second function of the key. So swiping on Q gives you number 1. Swipe down A to get the @ symbol.

Also if you long press some keys, you can choose from accent characters, so A shows the à á â ã ä å

If you also want to have the Google Keyboard you can get it fro the App store (it's called GBOARD) and you turn it on via Apple's settings cog Settings -> General -> Keyboard

Music Interlude:    05    Ain't No Mountain High Enough (Marvin Gaye & Tammi Terrell)

Backup Processes

What are they? Ensuring you have a copy of important stuff

Why should you have them? Recovery from loss (theft, destruction, ...)

Options? Manual/Auto copy to external media or cloud service

Not so long ago when Windows XP was king, backup was a fairly manual process and you needed to install programs to take care of it.

Mostly these days, backups tend to be fairly automatic by making use of the cloud

Windows 7/ 10 /11 have access to Onedrive - which needs to be configured

Android phones have Google backup - Settings -> backup (automatic) iPad/iPhone have iCloud backup - Settings -> icloud -> icloud backup options (need to be turned on)

5. LISTENER QUESTIONS

How do I stop Apple backing up to the cloud?

As discussed in the backup section above, you can toggle iCloud backup on/off from the Settings Cog.

You need to be sure that the data in iCloud is still on your phone or you may lose the data in iCloud.

You can also install iCloud for Windows on your PC/laptop to see what's in the cloud and download if you need to.
