SONG	(C) Elvis Presley - Follow That Dream (1962) The song was written by Fred Wise (lyrics) and Ben Weisman (music), recorded by Elvis Presley as part of the soundtrack for his 1962 motion picture Follow That Dream. Trivia: The courtroom scene was filmed in the Citrus County Courthouse in nearby Inverness, Florida. When the courthouse was restored and made into the Old Courthouse Heritage Museum during the 1990s, photographs of the courtroom were scarce, since courtroom photography was not allowed there for many years. With permission from MGM, still photographs of the film were used as reference to recreate the look of the courtroom. As of 2009, the only known visual record of the original courtroom interior is that which is in Follow That Dream (1962).

SONG	Bette Midler - Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy (1941 / 1972) "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" is a World War II jump blues song written by Don Raye and Hughie Prince which was introduced by The Andrews Sisters in the Abbott and Costello comedy film, Buck Privates (1941). The Andrews Sisters' Decca recording reached number six on the U.S. pop singles chart in the spring of 1941 when the film was in release. The song is ranked No. 6 on Songs of the Century. Bette Midler's 1972 recording of the song (produced by Barry Manilow) also reached number 7 on the Australian Charts. Trivia: Buck Privates took in US$4 million (at a time when theatre admission ranged between 10 cents and 25 cents), more than any Universal Pictures Film to that point

SONG	Gene Kelly - Singing In The Rain (1952) 1952 Movie starring Gene Kelly, Donald O'Connor & Debbie Reynolds. The film was only a modest hit when it was first released. In 1989, Singin' in the Rain was one of the first 25 films selected by the United States Library of Congress for preservation in the National Film Registry for being "culturally, historically, or aesthetically significant" Trivia: Howard Keel was the original choice to play Don Lockwood; however, he was replaced by Gene Kelly as the screenwriters evolved the character from a "Western actor" background to a "song-and-dance vaudeville" background.

SONG	Chuck Berry - Johnny B. Goode (1958) First recorded by Chuck Berry. A cover version is included in the film Back to the Future, when the lead character Marty McFly plays it at a high school dance. Actor Michael J. Fox explained his approach to "incorporate all the characteristics and mannerisms and quirks of my favourite guitarists, so a Pete Townshend windmill, and Jimi Hendrix behind the back, and a Chuck Berry duckwalk. And we worked all that in." [19] Reviewer Gregory Wakeman described it as "one of the best musical performances in movie history"

Hot on the heels of Italy's banning of Chat GPT, EU lawmakers have gathered to propose a new AI act which would look at various means of regulating the development and implementation of AI technologies. In an open letter, members of parliament called for international cooperation in developing what they are terming guardrails on the development of AI tools.

In the open letter, lawmakers acknowledged that while the AI Act is directed at high-risk AI use cases, "we also need a complementary set of preliminary rules for the development and deployment of powerful General Purpose AI systems that can be easily adapted to a multitude of purposes."

This comes after much controversy and unrest in the AI space following the first open letter from the top bods last month, asking for a 6 month slow-down of all things AI.

STINGER	NEWS 2 - Less and less TikTok by the day

Governments worldwide continue to express serious concerns over the safety of user data on TikTok, the popular social media platform owned by Chinese company ByteDance. Just last week, Australia and New Zealand joined the growing list of naysayers, prohibiting its use on government issued devices... but this all began long ago, India banned the platform in mid-2020, as part of a broader crackdown on Chinese-owned apps, citing concerns that user data was being transmitted to servers outside of India. This ban cost ByteDance one of its biggest markets, and since then, more than two dozen states in the US have banned TikTok on government-issued devices, with many colleges blocking the app from campus Wi-Fi networks. Now, Montana legislators approved a bill on Friday that would ban TikTok from being offered in the state by preventing the app from being available to install from the app stores.

While the app has been banned for three years on US government devices used by the Army, the Marine Corps, the Air Force, and the Coast Guard, these bans do not typically extend to personal devices. As a result, students often just switch to their personal phones to access the app.

So, what is the concern with TikTok, and why are governments taking such drastic steps to block it? The concern centres around the safety of user data, as TikTok collects vast amounts of information about its users, including their location, device information, and browsing history. There are fears that this data could be accessed by the Chinese government, potentially endangering national security.

Question: Doesn't Google and Facebook and every other social media app do this too?

STINGERNEWS 3 - Hungry?

DoorDash Air: Are you tired of waiting for your food to arrive? Do you want your groceries delivered as soon as possible? Well, the future of food delivery is here, and it's called DoorDash Air.

DoorDash Air is a new service that comes via a partnership with DoorDash, drone company Wing, and shopping centre giant Mirvac. The service has launched in Queensland and covers households in a dozen or so suburbs for now. Wing has also established a hub for drone deliveries at Mirvac's Orion Springfield Central shopping centre in Ipswich.

The new operations centre makes it possible for local restaurants and retailers using DoorDash's platform and Wing's delivery drones to send food and essentials to households further afield.

It's a very small group of people that immediately benefit from this severely gimmicky opportunity, but it's a sign of the future. A future where drones deliver food and...look, it's super cool.

Drones can carry a payload of up to 1kg and travel at speeds up to 110km/hr.

The service is expected to expand to other areas in the near future

SONG	Paul McCartney & Wings - Live And Let Die (1973) Performed by the British–American rock band Wings. Written by Paul & Linda McCartney Trivia: Sir Roger Moore's stunt man in the movie was actually Ross Kananga (the villain was named after him). He was a stuntman and crocodile wrangler. It took 6 takes to complete the scene where Bond flees the bad guys by running across the backs of 3 crocodiles in a swamp. Kananga received $60,000 for the stunt. He explained; "something like that is almost impossible to do. So, I had to do it six times before I got it right. I fell five times. The film company kept sending to London for more clothes. The crocs were chewing off everything when I hit the water, including shoes. I received one hundred ninety-three stitches on my leg and face."

1981: The first test flight of the first operational space shuttle, the Columbia, ends successfully as the orbiter lands at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

1912: The RMS Titanic strikes an iceberg four days into its maiden voyage. Over 1,500 passengers drown when the ship sinks early the next morning. The Marconi wireless equipment on board is used to call for help, effectively saving 700 people. It was stated that, "Those who have been saved have been saved through one man, Mr. Marconi and his wonderful invention."

1970: An oxygen tank aboard the Service Module of Apollo 13 explodes. Moments later, astronaut Jack Swigert announces the later-famous phrase, "Houston, we've had a problem here."

SONG	Rocky Soundtrack - Gonna Fly Now (Theme Song) (1976) Composed by Bill Conti with lyrics by Carol Connors and Ayn Robbins, and performed by DeEtta West and Nelson Pigford. Released in 1976 with Rocky, the song became part of 1970s American popular culture after the film's main character and namesake Rocky Balboa as part of his daily training regimen runs up the 72 stone steps leading to the entrance of the Philadelphia Museum of Art in Philadelphia and raises his arms in a victory pose, while the song plays. Trivia: The single most expensive cost on the film was make-up.

SONG	Shirley Bassey - Goldfinger (1964) Leslie Bricusse (pron. brick-us) and Anthony Newley were asked to create the lyrics for the song. But when its composer John Barry played them the first three notes, Bricusse and Newley looked at each other and sang out: ". . . wider than a mile," to the melody of "Moon River," the popular theme song from Breakfast at Tiffany's. Barry was not amused. The recording of "Goldfinger" lasted all night because Barry demanded repeated takes, not due to any shortcomings in Bassey's vocal, but musical or technical glitches. Initially, Bassey had problems with the climactic final note, which necessitated her slipping behind a studio partition between takes to remove her bra. Bassey said of the final note: "I was holding it and holding it – I was looking at John Barry and I was going blue in the face and he's going – hold it just one more second. When it finished, I nearly passed out."

SONG	Ray Parker Jr - Ghostbusters (1984) Trivia: In the middle of the film's initial release, to keep interest going, Ivan Reitman ran a trailer that was basically the commercial the Ghostbusters used in the movie, but the 555 number was replaced with a 1-800 number, allowing people to actually call in. Callers got a recorded message of Bill Murray and Dan Aykroyd saying something to the effect of "Hi. We're out catching ghosts right now." They got 1,000 calls per hour, 24 hours a day, for several weeks.

	The song was made famous by the 1972 film Deliverance, which also led to a successful lawsuit by the song's composer (Aurthur "Boogie" Smith), as it was used in the film without Smith's permission. Trivia: Billy Redden, ended up working at Walmart. A couple casting directors came into our school and they picked me out. They just said, Sit there and be natural. There was another local boy behind me, Mike Atlas, playing the banjo. I just had two scenes: sitting on the porch, then the bridge. The rest of the movie I don't know nothing about. I left.

Should I turn my computer off at night? Sometimes 😊

Power saving settings are usually pretty good if you set them up correctly
You want it to be ready when you are!

If you don't use it much, turn it on once a week and leave it on for a few hours so that updates can happen.
If you leave it on all the time, shut it down once a week or so, to force updates that require reboots.
Windows will usually reboot when it wants to anyway.

Theme	Game Music - Mine Sweeper Theme

	Classic Windows Game Minesweeper is a logic puzzle video game featuring a grid of clickable squares, with hidden "mines" scattered throughout the board. The objective is to clear the board without detonating any mines, with help from clues about the number of neighbouring mines in each field. Minesweeper was popularised by Microsoft in the 1990s in early versions on Windows but it stemmed from an adaptation of the 1983 version of Mined-Out on the Spectrum ZX computer. Players click on a blank cell and when uncovered will show either a mine (BANG), a number indicating the number of adjacent mines or remain clear indicating there are no adjacent mines. If you think a cell contains a mine you can mark it with a special mine marker of which you only have a limited supply. It's quite strategic and you can time yourself and challenge your friends. Available for Windows, Android and Apple

SONG	Steppenwolf - Born To Be Wild (1969) "Born to Be Wild" is a song written by Mars Bonfire and first performed by the band Steppenwolf. It is most notably featured in the 1969 film Easy Rider. Trivia: While the actors smoked real marijuana, the cocaine seen at the start of the film is fake. According to Peter Fonda, this is because they couldn't afford the real thing. Dennis Hopper and Peter Fonda did not write a full script for the movie, and made most of it up as they went along. They didn't hire a crew, but instead picked up hippies at communes across the country, and used friends and passers-by to hold the cameras, and were drunk and stoned most of the time.

SPARE SONGS	Billy Ocean - When The Going Gets Tough, The Tough Get Going (1985) Written by Wayne Brathwaite, Barry Eastmond, Mutt Lange and Ocean, the song was used as the theme song for the Michael Douglas and Kathleen Turner film The Jewel of the Nile (1985), a sequel to Romancing the Stone. Isaac Hayes - Theme From Shaft (1971) The song was considered very racy for its time. As late as 1990, censors at the Fox Network thought it too risqué to be sung on The Simpsons (until it was pointed out that the song had been played on television before). Tina Turner - We Don't Need Another Hero (1984) "We Don't Need Another Hero (Thunderdome)" is a song written by Graham Lyle and Terry Britten, and recorded by American singer Tina Turner. It appeared in the 1985 film Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome, which starred Mel Gibson and Turner. John Williams - Hedwigs Theme Harry Potter (2001)
